Course Description, Goal and Rationale:

- The course surveys the range of ideas, research methods and approaches to scholarship, critical reflection, and creative work in the humanities.

- Students will cultivate an ability to analyze and critique scholarship, critical reflection, and creative work in the humanities.

Learning Objectives:

- Conceptualize a variety of sociocultural and philosophical issues, art and other cultural artifacts within the subject of the humanities, beginning in the prehistoric era, and resolving to the contemporary moment.

- Recognize conflict within the humanities, be it within academic scholarship or creative expression, and consider ways to examine solutions to complex issues and representations.

- Apply personal perspectives and expectations to a variety of humanistic phenomena in a critical theoretical way.

- Evaluate different ways that people express concerns within the context of the humanities.

- Form a theory about what the humanities may be, and how such a diverse cultural enterprise may be used to make sense of complex issues and artifacts which surround all of us in the 21st century.
Student Responsibilities

- Participation: Students are expected to submit their discussions and essays for online courses in a timely manner. Learning activities are organized via Canvas discussions and students are expected to be full partners in this process. Students are also expected to be attentive to the Canvas site’s announcements and assignments on a continuing basis. Checking with the Canvas site at least three times each week will be necessary. Learning is facilitated by online discussion forums. There may be some online group work and students are expected to be full partners in this process.

- NOTE ON FINANCIAL AID and PARTICIPATION: As of Fall 2014, all faculty members are required to document students’ academic activity at the beginning of each course. In order to document that you began this course, please complete the first discussion forum post during the first week of class. Failure to do so will result in a delay in the disbursement of your financial aid.

- Homework: Assignments will be given requiring the student’s own writing and responses to articles, films, and outside stimuli brought into the course for the purpose of student responses.

- Other daily responsibilities: Students will be encouraged to enrich their learning environment by bringing into course discussions items from newspapers, radio reports, television coverage, the latest films, and anecdotes from their own life experiences.

- Tests/Exams: There will be a midterm and final (non-cumulative) essay exam for the course.

Final Exam

Grading Method: Evaluation is based mainly on essay writing and therefore a competency in such writing is expected. Students’ writing will be judged by its clarity and precision in manuscript execution (all essays must be word-processed and submitted digitally) with evidence of: proofreading before submission; correct spelling, punctuation, and grammar; focus on a point, topic, or subject that is congruent with the scope of the assignment; appropriate synthesis and analysis; logical progression of ideas, arguments, counter arguments, and conclusions; and assertions and statements supported by evidence and discussion.

Grading Scale:

Assessments:

- The Midterm and Final Exam (approx. 1000 words each) count for ~65% (~30% for the Midterm; ~35% for the Final Exam) of the grade.
- Discussion boards (approx. 1600 words total) count for ~35% of the grade.

Policy for late work: Tardiness in posting to Canvas and assignment submission will be penalized as follows. There will be 10% deduction for work submitted after the due date. One week from the due date is the last date for which an assignment will be accepted without documented evidence for an excused absence. The professor reserves the right to amend this policy where the situation warrants it.

UCF Golden Rule: Plagiarism of any kind is a violation of the "Golden Rule" as published in the UCF Catalog. Academic honesty and integrity are expected of everyone. Academic dishonesty results in at least an "F" for the particular assignment concerned and may be subject to further action as appropriate.

ADA Policy: To register for services contact Student Disability Services at ada@mail.ucf.edu or 407-823-2371.
